

Big inter-est in funeral films

FOR cameraman Gerry Duffy, business is alive and well. When not busy capturing blushing brides, Gerry is doing a booming trade in filming funerals. Gerry (50) from Dundalk, Co Louth, said: "We are getting a huge number of people calling to ask about our service.

"We have already done 28 so far this year. "A lot of the business we get is from people who live abroad and can't get back to Ireland in time for a loved one's funeral. "They don't want to miss the Mass and ask us to record it and send it to them so they can share the experience," he added.
